

Love Idioms Worksheet

Instructions: Underline the idiomatic expressions in the sentences and write the meanings.

Sentences with Idioms / Phrases	Meaning
My precious daughter is the apple of my eye.
Bobby asked her out, but she decided to stay home and do laundry.
Apparently, Tiffany and Tim are an item. I always see them together.
She is nuts about her new boyfriend.
Ella likes guys with big beards. Her girlfriends say to her that beauty is definitely in the eye of the beholder.
I don't like blind dates because I want to know what she looks like first.
My friend always goes on double dates and likes getting attention from both guys.
She drives me crazy. I don't know if I should buy her another diamond or get a divorce.
We got hitched last month. Didn't you get the wedding invitation?
I asked her to go steady, but she dated Joe instead.
Mary had the hots for George, so she wrote him a love letter.
Sarah was head over heels for her new boyfriend.
My heart goes out to Sara. She spent years fighting cancer.
Jane and Joe are joined at the hip.
Her fiance left her at the altar and moved to Fiji.

Love is certainly blind. Tom is very attracted to a girl who eats on the toilet.
Hank is such a love rat. This is the tenth girl I've seen him with this week.
Kate really hates it when couples are lovey-dovey in public.
Frank wanted to make love in the tent, but his wife wanted a hotel room.
There is no love lost between Donald and Hillary.
Elizabeth was on cloud nine when she put on the diamond ring.
Their relationship is now on the mend after going to counseling.
Their relationship is on the rocks. They'll probably break up soon.
He popped her the big question during their vacation.
It was just puppy love during high school but they broke up in university.
He loved his wife through thick and thin.
You should throw it in her. I think she really wants you.
Are you ever going to tie the knot? You aren't getting any younger.
Do you fancy Molly? She likes you too.
My girlfriend walked out on me, so I drank a bottle of vodka.
Sue likes it when I whisper sweet nothings in her ear in bed.	